An amendment to the Gun Control Act of 1968 (18 U.S.C. 922) makes it a felony for anyone who has been convicted of a misdemeanor crime of domestic violence to ship, transport, possess, or receive firearms or ammunition. It is also a felony for any person to sell or otherwise dispose of a firearm to any person so convicted. The law pertains to anyone who has ever been convicted of a domestic violence misdemeanor. There is no exemption for military personnel or law enforcement officer and agents.

Convictions of “misdemeanor crimes of domestic violence” as defined in the amendment do not include summary court-martial convictions, the imposition of non-judicial punishment (Article 15. UCMJ), or deferred prosecutions (or similar alternative dispositions) in civilian courts. The law also excludes anyone whose conviction has been expunged or set aside, or who has received a pardon. A misdemeanor crime of domestic violence in any offense which has, as its factual basis, the use of attempted use of physical force, or the threatened use of a deadly weapon, committed by the victim’s current or former domestic partner, parent, or guardian.

If you have ever been convicted of a misdemeanor crime of domestic violence within the meaning of the law, continued retention of any firearm or ammunition, whether Government-issued or privately owned, may subject you to felony criminal penalties including a sentence of imprisonment of up to ten years and a fine of up to $250,000, as well as administrative action.

If you have ever received a qualifying domestic violence misdemeanor conviction: (1) you may not possess any firearm or ammunition; and (2) you must return any Government-issued firearm or ammunition to your commander or immediate supervisor. Furthermore, any previously issued authorization to possess a firearm or ammunition is revoked.
